3. Between 25 and 30 April, the Damm airbase south of Justerbog was occupied by troops with red-bordered black epaulets and air force personnel. Source believed that the majority of the troops quartered there were away for maneuvers. The troops were predominantly occupied with callisthenics and fatigue duty. Not more than about 10 groups of soldiers were seen at a time. On 27 April three groups were observed at combat practice with blank cartridges and on 30 April three groups were digging trenches.

4. The following units turned in their washing at the Justerbog laundry between 28 April and 4 May 1952:
